1. The manager of the steel works in Sisak is Filip Knezevic. The Administrative Committee is composed of nine members, all of them members of the Federation of Communists of Yugoslavia (FCY); it is probable that only FCY members can become members of the Administrative Committee. Franjo Malic is secretary of the Sisak enterprise and in charge of personnel. Secretary of the FCY Committee is Pero Cveticanin, who is also a member of the Administration Committee. The Party is organized by sections. There are six sections: Furnace Section, Steel Shop (ingots), Foundry Section, Sheet Steel Section, Mechanical Workshop, External and Transportation Section. Each section has a Party cell and all the cells together constitute the plant Party organization. The secretary of the Party cell in the Steel Shop is Milan Modranja.
2. The general manager of the steel works used to be appointed by the Federal Government, but recently this was changed and he is now appointed by the Republic of Croatia. Planning continues to depend on the Federal Council for Heavy Industry. The general manager is the real head of the enterprise; he, together with the so-called collegium which is composed of the general manager, head engineer, and technical manager, is the one who runs the plant. The Worker's Council is composed of about 60 persons. The Administrative Committee and the Workers' Council are only figureheads and have nothing to say about the administration of the plant.
